“ I worked with Jeff on the same shift and haul down in the mines, we would often walk out together to the parking lot at the end of the shift and just stay and talked while we watched everybody rush off and talk about life in general, he was one of those guys that made work a lot more bearable with his quick wit ways that could always put a smile on you face, some one would ask him at the end of shift, what time is it , he would always answer , TIME TO STICK A FORK IN IT! R-I-P my friend!
