*We're gone from the world
That had brought your mother's laughter
As a smiling so small and frail
You carried your life with us and in sight
Nurtured from the sun and rain
That came from the heaven above
Acheron's flood in this old world
That kept you from her soul
You've seen many seasons come and go
Many years have gone by the seasons
Remember them here, taken from your forehead
Against the wind that took the rain
Making your road as dry and strong
You've passed our journey for many generations*
